

Project : E-Learning Platform

During the handover session we had a brief discussion about the project with group J. At first this project was implemented using CL Interface by group C and later it was hand-overed to group J. Then, group J used the GU Interface to restructure the whole implementation of the project without changing the CL interface code. Thus, the project was restructured using GU Interface.

For the further development of the project, it was hand-overed to us to do the Black-box and White-box test cases. We have looked over the implementation of the project and have completed the Black-box test cases in a subjective way by checking all the edge cases that are possible to us. Most of the visually implementing part of the project was successfully tested by us. We also conducted the White-box test cases using the Junit tests and have tested the code that was written by the previous group. We have tested few of the cases and are successful in doing the White-box testing. The document of both the Black-box and White-box test cases have been attached along with this document.
